ADJUST THE LENGTH: How to Hem Pants

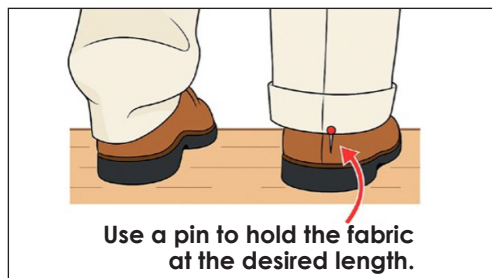

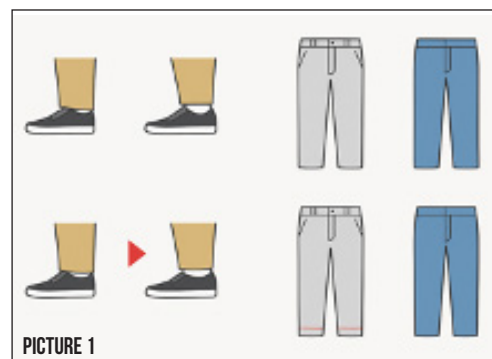

Hemming pants shortens the length to fit properly. You can hem pants by hand or with a sewing machine. Here is a simple guide to a basic hand-sewn hem, along with tips for machine hemming

YOU WILL NEED:

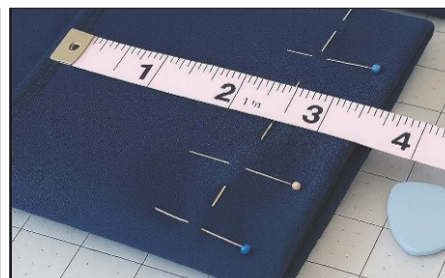

- Needle & matching thread
- Straight pins or clips
- Scissors
- Iron (for crisp folds)
- Measuring tape or ruler
- Chalk or fabric marker
- Seam ripper (optional)

STEP-BY-STEP INSTRUCTIONS:

1. Try on the Pants: Wear the shoes you will wear with the pants. Fold the hem up to your desired length. Pin in place or mark with chalk (picture 1).
2. Mark and Cut (if needed): Take off the pants and lay them flat. Mark a line below the fold for seam allowance. Cut off the excess fabric if the pants are very long (picture 2).
3. Press the Fold: Fold the raw edge up once (1/2 inch), press, fold the fabric over again, and press (picture 3-4).

4. Sew the Hem (Blind Stitch or Whipstitch): For a blind stitch (invisible hem), take small stitches through a couple of threads of the pant fabric above the folded hem, then go into the hem fold. Repeat this stitch all the way around. For a whipstitch (easier but visible), stitch over the hem edge and catch a bit of the pant fabric each time in a spiral motion (pictures 5-6).
5. Finish: Knot the thread when finished. Iron the new hem flat for a polished look (picture 7).

EXTRA TIPS:

- Use the right stitch for the pants material. A blind stitch works well for most pants.
- For jeans, use a needle designed for denim and a contrasting thread to replicate the original look.
- If using a sewing machine, select the blind hem stitch setting and attach a blind hem foot to your machine. Place the pant leg around the free arm of the sewing machine to sew the hem. Walk over the seam with a walking foot to manage fabric bulk (photos below).
- Finish the raw edge with pinking shears or a hand overlock stitch.
